

Engaging audiences through innovation

Opportunities and trends for digital journalism

Why audience engagement matters

If you build it, they will come

- An ability to command a local audience makes our regional brands unique
- We have to appeal to that audience, but resources are finite
- Everything we do MUST work on mobile and be app-compatible
- To continue growing as a digital business, we must keep developing our local audience (not least to provide more commercial opportunities for our colleagues in advertising)
- This means converting visitors to loyal readers who spend more time on our sites, accessing more content
- Get this right and we make money...
- ...So we can do more editorially
- We aim to address 3 need states: Tell Me; Help Me; Indulge Me
- Content we create is made purely for a digital audience; in newsrooms, small, talented print teams finesse this content back into newspaper pages

Driving engagement: Live and interactive

Telling stories in new ways, on new platforms

- Live video - Hangouts on Air
- Live streaming
- Live webcams
- Interactive panoramas: like this and this
- Interactive images like this
- Interactive/animated maps

Hangouts and live streams invite audiences to be part of the story; interactives mean they stay with the story; maps add familiarity/context for local audiences

Immersive storytelling

Increasing engagement and dwell time

Steven Gerrard's farewell - 300 words of text, 5 minutes of 'actively' reading the content, 70k uniques; 86k pageviews, 5.25minutes average dwell time. Longform ≠ ALL THE WORDS

Ask me about: 'rain', 'latest', 'popular', 'burger', 'vote', 'safe', 'random crime'. Keep it simple. I'm not very bright yet.
